

The use of cell phones in the air is unsafe! enable terrorists on board to communicate with one another to execute a hijacking more effectively. They could, for example, Terrorists will easily use a cell phone or Blackberry to email the positions of flight crew or someone they suspect to be a Federal Air Marshal or to communicate if the flight deck door were being opened for a pilot. The introduction of cell phone use in the cabin would not only introduce a new security risk and increase tension among passengers, it would compromise flight attendants' ability to maintain order in an emergency.
